

REGENT GOLF SELECTED FOR CONSULTING PROJECT WITH CEDARBROOK COUNTRY CLUB

April 1, 2009

Alpharetta, GA – Regent Golf is pleased to announce that it has been selected for an extended consulting project at Cedarbrook Country Club, a semi-private club located in Elkin, North Carolina. This agreement for consulting services is an extension of a membership survey and operational audit performed earlier in the year at Cedarbrook by Regent Golf. During this project, Regent Golf will focus on implementing recommendations made during the evaluation report to the Board of Directors.

Built among the rolling foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, Cedarbrook Country Club is the creation of one of the golf's legendary architects. The demanding Ellis Maples design is shaped out of the land once reserved as a private hunting retreat for North Carolina's leading families.

Today, Cedarbrook members and visitors enjoy a beautiful clubhouse with its clapboard siding, shingled gables and distinctive rooftop cupola completed in 2005, two tennis courts and a swimming complex complementing the 18 hole championship golf course. Inside the clubhouse, Cedarbrook has fully appointed Men's and Women's lockers rooms, a well stocked golf shop, a comfortable Grill Room and lounge and a welcoming staff.

"We are very excited to work with Cedarbrook, its Board of Directors and staff to implement some of the key findings in our initial membership survey and operational audit," said Steve Paris, Founder/Partner, Regent Golf. "We believe that implementing many of our recommendations will better align Cedarbrook's services with a defined market position, producing even greater value for its members and guests as well as improved financial performance."

"We were very impressed with the approach and the ability of Regent Golf to quickly relate to our market and its members," said David Renegar, President of the Board of Directors of Cedarbrook Country Club. "We are confident that Regent Golf will be able to help our club improve in areas that are key to the financial health of our club."
